

Internship - Peer video

Summary: This document contains guidelines on how to turn-in your peer-video

Contents

I	General instructions
---	----------------------

2

Chapter I

General instructions

Peer-evaluation is necessary to validate any internship project:

You must turn-in a presentation video of your internship period, uploaded on a website like Youtube, Dailymotion, etc.. and include the link in a file named "video" on your git repo.

The goal of the video is to make a short presentation of what happened during your internship. The video has to last 4 to 5 minutes. It must contain a presentation using any tool at your disposal (Powerpoint, Prezi, Keynote...), and a frame containing your face, or even better you as a whole. An introduction/conclusion where you appear alone is fine. This video must look as professional as a presentation in front of the administration council of a big company.

You will be marked as much for the quality of your slides, your tenance, the overall quality of the video and its realisation.

The content must respect the following rules:

- There's a new member coming to the administration council : you need to explain the global context of the company, its specific context, the challenges, the content and the results of your internship project(s).
- The new member must be able to understand what you're explaining.
- Looking to promote people internally, the administration council is here to listen to YOU. It is important that you show your implication on the project, your qualities (technical as much as anything else).